Those Morocco goods and Prang's oil chromos created a sensation, and there is no denying the fact that the proprietor means business.

Many remains from the west and of the city purchase their goods in the central portion of the District, forgetting that there are establishments in their own locality where articles can be procured as good and at the same prices. W. H. Fearson, No. 114 Pennsylvania avenue, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, has a trimming store which for capacity and quality of goods cannot be excelled. WALL'S OPERA HOUSE.—This sijou of a theatre was crowded last night with the beauty and fashion of our sity to listen, to the initial performance of Strakosh's Haisan Opera Troupe in Verdi's favoritis opera, of "Il Trovatore." To simply state that the feeding artists, Madame La Grange, Mise Adelaide Phillips, Signor Beignoil and Signor Orlandial, more than satisfied a critical audience in the rendition of their several roles, would be but "damning with faint prists." It was a spendid performance in aching (a rare ment in opera) and in vocatisation: The approbation of the swiftence was testified by hearfelt applause, and repeated encower. Madame La Grange was superfix a Leonors, and Miss Adelaide Phillips in her rendition of Aruccia, proved herself, in sturing and setting, to be in fact the "American Prima Donna." Helpholi as Maarleo and Orlandiaf at Count De Linia were admirable; and we have only to add, in conclusion, that there have been but few occasions in our twenty years' expedience as an absting of the opera that we have been more highly gratified with were not their mines of our friends who were not their mines of our friends who were not their mines of our friends who were not their mines of a great treat. To-night the grand opera of "Norma" will be rendered. As Madame La Grange has won more than nore laurels in this, her most celebrated rate, another full house and gratified audience may confidently be predicted.
